It was at the East–West Center that Ms. Dunham met Lolo Soetoro, a Javanese surveyor who had come to Honolulu on September 1962 on a East–West Center grant to study geography at the University of Hawaii. Soetoro graduated from the University of Hawaii with an M.A. in geography in June 1964. In 1965, Soetoro and Dunham were married in Hawaii, and in 1966, Soetoro returned to Indonesia. After Ms. Dunham’s graduation from the University of Hawaii with a B.A. in anthropology on August 6, 1967, Ms. Dunham moved with her six-year-old son, Barack Obama Jr., to Jakarta, Indonesia in October 1967 to rejoin her husband. In Indonesia, Soetoro worked first as a low-paid topographical surveyor for the Indonesian government, and later in the government relations office of Union Oil Company.

The family first lived at 16 Kyai Haji Ramli Tengah Street in a newly-built neighborhood in the Menteng Dalam administrative village of the Tebet subdistrict in South Jakarta

Then in 1970, the family moved two miles north to 22 Taman Amir Hamzah Street in the Matraman Dalam neighborhood in the Pegangsaan administrative village of the Menteng subdistrict in Central Jakarta, with her son attending the Indonesian-language government-run Besuki School one and half miles east in the exclusive Menteng administrative village of the Menteng subdistrict for part of 3rd grade and for 4th grade.

State Elementary School Menteng 01 (Indonesian: Sekolah Dasar Negeri (SDN) Menteng 01), also known as SDN Besuki or the Besuki school, is an Indonesian public school in Menteng, Jakarta.

The school was founded in 1934 as Carpentier Alting Stichting Nassau School (CAS) by the Dutch colonial administration and was reserved for the children of the Dutch and Indonesian nobility. The Indonesian government took over administration of the school in 1962, and it was then run by the Raden Saleh Foundation. ⁷

Among its students have been children of Bambang Trihatmodjo, the son of former president Suharto, as well as the grandchildren of former vice presidents Hamzah Haz and Try Sutrisno. Barack Obama Jr. spent his fourth year of schooling there. Obama's announcement of his candidacy for United States president in January, 2007 drew world-wide media attention to the school, with many media outlets sending reporters there, including The Chicago Tribune, MSNBC, and the BBC. Nedra Pickler of the Associated Press reported: "Those tied to the school say they are proud to have had a student like Obama, and hope that, if he is elected president, his ties to Indonesia will broaden his world perspective and his views on religion." ⁸

In Indonesia, Mrs. Soetoro (Stanley Ann Dunham) enriched her son's education with correspondence courses in English, recordings of Mahalia Jackson, and speeches by Martin Luther King Jr. In 1971, she sent the young Obama back to Hawaii to attend Punahou School starting in 5th grade rather than having him stay in Asia with her.

The above photocopy of the school records of Barack Obama Jr. (Barry Soetoro) shows the frame of mind and intent of Stanley Ann Dunham at the time her husband (Lolo Soetoro) registered Barack Obama Jr. with the family name of "Soetoro" and declared that Barak Obama Jr.'s citizenship was with Indonesia. Stanley Ann Dunham and her husband's actions were making a statement that Stanley Ann Dunham believed that her son was not born on the soil of the United States and that her son did not have United States Citizenship. As Lolo Soetoro never adopted Barack Obama Jr. as his son, we must conclude that this belief of Stanley Ann Dunham was founded upon the possibility that Barack Obama Jr. was born on the soil of the Colony of Kenya?
